Above section 74023 meets 9 weeks (9/18-11/17).

This class does not meet on Tuesday October 11th.

Course Information: Though you cannot teach a person to be a poet, you can teach the craft of poetry which will help anyone interested in reading or writing poetry obtain a deeper knowledge of what it takes to produce successful verse. That poetry is a craft in no way implies that it is not an inspired form of writing. In fact, knowledge of craft facilitates inspiration and helps shape it in meaningful ways.

In this course, we will examine some of the great poems written by poets from all over the world. If a poem is "a little machine of words," as William Carlos Williams claims, we will all become ace mechanics by learning what parts are required to assemble a poem, what tools are necessary for the job, and how to use them to build a poem and make it run. No prior knowledge of craft is necessary. Bring your interest in poetry, your enthusiasm for the subject and your eagerness to learn. This is a writing workshop in which we discuss each other's work, but it is also a study of poems written by great poets, trying to learn how they did it. It is hoped the student will take this knowledge back to the writing of their own poems. We will focus on themes of particular interest to a mature audience: love, loss, the body, time, spirituality, friendship, the natural world and in particular, one's "life story."
