1	Need of training depends on the tutor's experience and depth of subject knowledge. Regardless, some extra time should be committed at the beginning of any new instructor/tutor relationship.	12/1/2016 7:10 AM
2	We can all continue to learn how to teach better, so I'm sure the embedded tutor would appreciate more opportunities, but they aren't necessary. I think the training received currently is sufficient.	11/30/2016 1:16 PM

1	Emily Falk is doing a great job. She's a big help in the lab	12/1/2016 10:16 AM
2	The success of the program really depends upon having a good student tutor. I had a GREAT one. My reaction could be very different with a different student tutor.	12/1/2016 9:31 AM
3	It is my hope that tutors with strong tutoring experience and strong depth of understanding of subject matter are paid more than the newer tutors who need time to grow into the job.	12/1/2016 7:10 AM
4	As a first-time beneficiary of embedded tutoring I am extremely pleased with the experience and a firm proponent of the practice. Thank you!	11/30/2016 2:24 PM
5	Cristina was the perfect tutor to have. She sat with individual students and gave 1:1 help, met with groups in Math Lab, met with students outside school on Flex days and helped in the library. She was knowledgeable, a good role model, always pleasant and got along well with all the students. I was very blessed to have her.	11/30/2016 2:17 PM
6	Thanks!	11/30/2016 2:08 PM
7	The Writing Center has a form it uses so that every meeting between a tutor and student is documented and a report about that meeting goes to the instructor. I would be better able to assess what kind of effect the embedded tutor is having in my course if I received such reports. Without them, I have no way of knowing, since students are not self-reporting such results to me.	11/30/2016 1:50 PM
